

ONLINE ASSESSMENTS FOR SCHOOL

The history of online assessments in schools traces its evolution from early computer introductions in the 1990s to platforms like Blackboard and Moodle. The COVID-19 pandemic accelerated the adoption of remote learning and proctoring technologies. Looking ahead, hybrid learning models integrating AI, advanced analytics, and interactive content are expected to shape the future of education. Future education will blend in-person and online learning, utilizing AI for personalization and analytics, with assessments incorporating gamification.
